

2019 FOOD FACTORY-4-US SUSTAINABLE SUPPLY CHAIN INTERNATIONAL STUDENT COMPETITION

Are you a Master's student enrolled in a food study programme eager to find solutions to improving sustainability in the cereal sector? We want to hear about them! We are accepting proposals and solutions to how ancient grains/alternative grains can contribute to improved sustainability in the cereal chain! Winning ideas will be rewarded with great prizes!

We are looking for teams of 3 to 5 Master's students enrolled in food study programmes anywhere in the world that will participate in an innovative, learner-centric international student competition based on action-oriented learning to design and develop ideas, tools and actions to solve this real, industry-based problem with a solution that is doable and therefore that may be of interest to the food industry and/or the food chain.

The ISEKI-Food Association, through its affiliate European Food-STA and under the umbrella of the FoodFactory-4-Us competitions is organizing this second "Sustainable Supply Chain" competition in collaboration with the International Association for Cereal Science and Technology (ICC). These competitions are one of the case studies of the NextFOOD project – a Horizon2020 project promoting innovative education for sustainable agriculture.

6 ONLINE INNOVATIVE ACTION-LEARNING TRAININGS

IMPORTANT DEADLINES

1-31 October 2019
registration of student teams

3 November 2019
acceptance of teams and
approval of project proposals

15 February 2020
submission of the project report

Final Virtual Conference
announcement of the winning team and award session
(week of 2 March 2020)

AWARDS FOR THE WINNING TEAM

- 300 Euro
- Free conference registration for the team leader of the winning team to present the team project at a conference organised by ICC.
- Perhaps more!

All participants will receive
Certificates of Participation

MORE INFO

<https://www.food-sta.eu/ssc2019-b>

CONTACT

ssc@iseki-food.net